Saving our Masonry Buildings

Bryan Bartley

Bryan is a former president, board member and now a life member of CTA.

As a professional engineer he was carrying out structural assessments of buildings to ensure they complied with the building code of the day. He subsequently worked in the quarry industry, measuring ground movement. Bryan will talk about measures to strengthen un-reinforced masonry heritage buildings to avert threat of demolition by non-compliance and describe the different types of earthquakes and their effects on buildings.

Sunday 11th August 3.15pm

From Scalpel to Chisel

Peter Charlesworthy

Peter was an established vascular and general surgeon when a chance encounter with a book led to a life-changing experience. He explains about his transition from surgeon to antique furniture restorer.

The talk will include Peter's training in England and subsequent work on antique furniture in New Zealand.

Sunday 14th July 3.15pm

Strength in Numbers: Joining Forces to Protect Character and Heritage

Sally Hughes

This is the story of the Character Coalition, an umbrella group representing 60 heritage & historical, special interest groups and resident associations, people who feel shut out of the decision-making process that determines development in their local environment. The group was formed on the basic principle of heritage protection for communities. Sally is the founder and convenor of the coalition and will provide an update of the Coalition's role in the Unitary Plan process.

Sunday 22nd September 3.15 pm

Samplers: their Role in New Zealand Social History

Vivien Caughley

Vivien is the author of a soon to be published book on samplers to be found in New Zealand. Celia Kinder's sampler is the oldest surviving example in NZ and Vivien will speak about this sampler in particular. You will be taken on a journey of New Zealand social history as crafted in the traditions of the cultural behaviours and leisure activities of the 1800's period.
